TELLS OF PENITENTES

Prof. Espinoza, formerly with University of New Mexico.

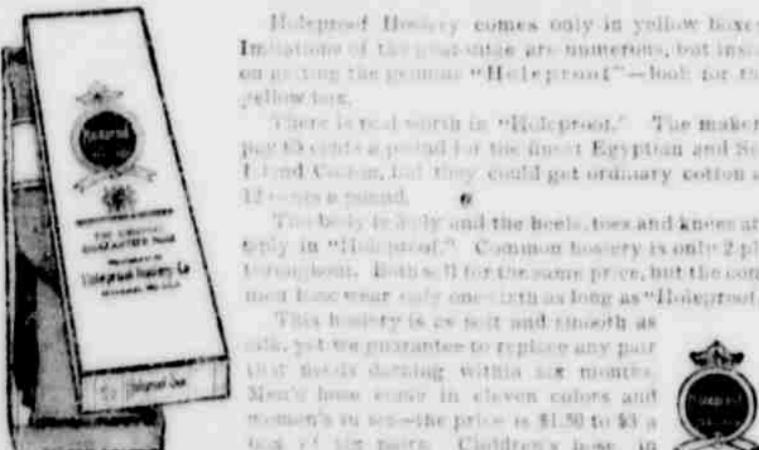

Gives Lecture.

Prof. A. M. Espinoza, formerly professor of language in the University of New Mexico, who is now instructor in romance languages in the Stanford university, California, gave a lecture recently in the university on the penitentes of New Mexico. The Daily Post of the University says:

A. M. Espinoza, assistant professor of romance languages, lectured on "Los Penitentes" Wednesday evening before the Cosmopolitan club. Prof. Espinoza related the history of a native religion not known as the Flagellants or Penitents among the Spanish speaking races of Colorado and New Mexico. The Flagellants believe that to enjoy a life beyond the grave they must suffer here punishment, self-administered, in this world. To this end they strike themselves upon the back with whips and sometimes cedar branches. The scars of many floggings and crosses constitute further voluntary inflictions and raise the Los Penitentes. However, according to Prof. Espinoza the most cruel of these practices have now been eliminated by order of the Roman Catholic church.

Poultry Fanciers TO MEET MONDAY EVENING

Will Discuss Poultry Show to Be Held This Spring and Also Elect Executive Committee for the Year.

Meeting evening at the Commercial club the New Mexican Poultry and Breeder's association will meet for the purpose of electing executive committee for the year. The proposed meeting place will be held just in the spring.

Humane society residents have been held up in the hills of Roswell, which the members hope not to be the case, or otherwise purposes. It is the desire of many of the fancy breeders to have a show in the spring when their stock will show up to best advantage.

It is nothing odd that there are more game birds in Albuquerque than ever before in the city's history, many birds having been shipped in in the last few months. These would serve to make an excellent exhibit and would tend to encourage other breeders to do more than is present.

A new executive committee will be elected at the meeting Monday night to serve during the ensuing year. One of the duties of the association is making it possible to get enough rage for the Albuquerque market and the income of our markets that will be discussed Monday night.
